Hi Marianne, we took the original clean version of the Action Plan and marked up those text items which make it read like a negotiated document. The version Megan sent to WHO is heavily marked up and we thought it might be helpful to show WHO the language that is causing confusion wrt to the status.

Of course we still have policy issues, especially on climate and a new goal.

Please let us know if it is a helpful tact for the US conference attendees to straighten out the status issue.

Hodayah,

This looks good to me. Does it make sense for Marianne to share with Megan and pass along to Maria, emphasizing that the United States will likely raise this issue through other channels if the framing of the document isn't fixed?

Thanks,
Kate

Kate, as discussed, here is a mark up of just the status/process issues in the Action Plan. Please take a look and add as needed. If there is no opportunity to provide input to the document by Conference attendees then at a minimum WHO needs to change their verbiage to reflect the correct status.
